

Sri Lanka's Killing Fields

No Fire Zone

Screening of Documentary Film and Discussion

Irish School of Ecumenics, Trinity College Dublin

(Lecture Room G16, Irish School of Ecumenics/Loyola Institute building; the ISE/LI building is at the east end of campus, facing the rugby pitch)

10th June 2015, 6.00 pm – 9.00 pm

No Fire Zone: Sri Lanka's Killing Fields, a feature documentary on the last phase of the war in Sri Lanka has highlighted mass atrocities committed by the Sri Lankan state against the Tamil people in the north and east of that island. Six years since the official end of the war and following a regime change in January 2015 there seems to be no mechanism for the pursuit of justice. The newly elected President has stated that he would not allow international investigations and has echoed the claim of the previous regime which asserted that the documentary was an outright fabrication and blocked its distribution in Sri Lanka.

Following the documentary there will be a discussion with the film's director as well as an exiled Sri Lankan journalist and a journalist who has investigated British complicity about the issues raised by the film and the current human rights situation in Sri Lanka.

Callum Macrae

(The director of No Fire Zone: Sri Lanka's Killing Fields, writer, journalist and co-founder of Outsider Television, UK)

Bashana Abeywardena

(An exiled Sri Lankan journalist, former editor of Hiru newspaper and convenor of Journalists for Democracy in Sri Lanka – JDS)

Phil Miller

(A journalist, author of 'Britain's Dirty War Against Tamil People' and an expert witness at the People's Tribunal on Sri Lanka)

All are welcome

Organised by

Irish School of Ecumenics and the Centre for Post-Conflict Justice (Trinity College Dublin) & Irish Forum for Peace in Sri Lanka

We gratefully acknowledge the support of Pax Christi Ireland and The Robert and Kezia Stanley Chapman Trust

As places are limited please register:
irishpeaceforum@gmail.com | 0851562980